Worried about winter damaged plants?

Be very patient and wait until late May before digging up and discarding any plants. That seems like a long time to wait, but the soil temperature is FINALLY beginning to warm. Thank God! As the soil warms up, new growth may be pushed out on plants that appear to be dead. Watch this video about cold damaged plants for some reassurance.

Pruning Rhododendrons

FROM WILMA: “Why are our rhododendron not flowering when our neighbor’s plants are in full bloom”? some friends asked a few days ago. They explained how they cared for them, and their plants looked lush and healthy but had no flowers.

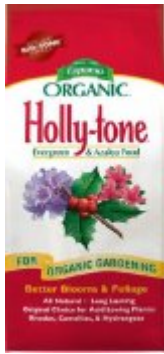

As an afterthought they said “Oh, we pruned them last fall”.

Rhododendron, azaleas, forsythia, and other spring-flowering shrubs and trees form buds in summer for next year’s flowers. They should be pruned just after flowering before they set buds. Overgrown spring-flowering plants can be rejuvenated by pruning now. Bill and I plan to prune an overgrown rhododendron (approximately 50 years old) when it is finished flowering.

Just after flowering is also the time to fertilize rhododendron and azaleas with Espoma Holly-tone. Holly-tone is also a recommended for acid loving plants like hollies, magnolias, dogwoods, and blueberries. There are other Espoma organic fertilizers for specific plants like roses, bulbs, tomatoes, etc. Animals are attracted to organic fertilizers, and it is best to not let your pets see you applying them.

Also, there are “vegan” plant foods available in our Garden Shop that are made from cottonseed and alfalfa meal.
